GONZALES –Ascension Parish President Kenny Matassa announced Parish Secretary Cinnamon McKey has been elected president of the Organization of Parish Administrative Officials, an affiliate of the Police Jury Association of Louisiana.

McKey took the oath of office before several hundred parish officials from across the state during the OPAO's Annual Luncheon/General Membership Meeting held at the Shreveport Convention Center on March 4.

"I know I speak for the Parish Council as well when I say how proud we are of Cinnamon and the job she does for our parish," said President Matassa. "It was a special moment for us to see her being recognized by her peers across the state."

McKey assumed the president's chair after serving as vice president of OPAO for the past year.

"OPAO gives us a chance to stand shoulder to shoulder with sixty three other parishes in the state which allows us to see how other people do the same job we do every day," McKey said. "I am honored to be the leader of a board made up of people who work hard to provide a very important stepping stone for those who are elected to make decisions for the people in our state."
